

Facebook for HAODS

Contributed by Dean Beedell (webmaster)

Hopefully most HAODS members will know that the society has a website (!) but the majority of HAODS members will have no inkling that HAODS is also online in the web space known as Facebook. I'll make a guess that a majority of members will not even have a clue as to what Facebook is... To put it simply Facebook is a place where people keep in touch with friends.

It is designed in such a way that it is a great way to meet and greet new chums and keep up on with what your existing friends are doing. Everyone has their own personal blog and an associated profile. People join like-minded groups and they share information about things dear to each of their hearts. There are countless groups on facebook but there are now three specifically created for HAODS members.

The first is a group dedicated to HAODS members in general, here you can keep in touch with HAODS gossip and perhaps get in contact with other members.

The second HAODS group is dedicated specifically to the last show we did - Return to the Forbidden Planet. The cast and other interested members are keeping in touch and have been swapping gossip on the show. To view this group click on the poster.

The latest HAODS group is dedicated specifically to the latest show - The Boyfriend. The cast and other interested members are now invited to join so that they can keep in touch and start swapping gossip on the new show. It is a place where cast members can express themselves and have a bit of light relief at the same time. To view this group click on the poster.

If you are interested in joining either of these online groups then just visit facebook and join up and add yourself to a group.

People join Facebook for the following reasons: Join Facebook groups to meet people like you or browse the profiles to find new friends. Facebook's classmates and co-worker search is good for finding friends too. You can keep track of friends, Facebook tells you when your friends are updating their profiles, adding to their blogs or have some other news on their website. It allows you to add to your own personal or group photo album, you can use the blog feature to create your own simple blog. There is also an excellent search and browse feature for people on Facebook allowing you to find old mates and colleagues online...

The more people that join the merrier. It helps HAODS to have thriving communities on the net. You may not always see the point in these things but the young do! and the future of the society is in their hands. We look forward to seeing you there.
